shareholders on the 27th ultimo.

Mr. Alfred C. Garrick has been appointed a local director of the National Mutual Life Association of Australasia, Limitod, in place of Mr. D. G. E. Alsop.

Australasia, Limitod, in place of Mr. D. G. E. Alsop, who has resigned.

In the Import market to-day no business of importance transpired, sales being mostly of sorting-up lines. In breadstuffs we hear of no change in prices, best Adelaids flour being worth £13 10s. to £13 15s.; New South Wales, £12 10s. to £13 15s.; New South Wales, £12 10s. to £12 15s.; Victorian, £12 to £12 5s.; New Zealand, obtainable from £9 15s. Wheat commands from 5s. to 5s. 3d. From Messrs, Robert Paxton and Coy's Christchurch grain circular of the 12th March we learn that gloomy weather had done grain in the field much damage, more especially in the Southern districts. Wheat would suffer most, but other coreals were discoloured also. An active but other coreals were discoloured also. An active business was reported. Wheat had suffered 1d. per bushel by the decline in Europe, but there was little prospect of lower rates for the thoroughly sound portion of the crop. Later on these would be a large quantity of damaged grain available at moderate rates. Flour had advanced to £11 f.o.b. for best brands. In tea, we hear of the sale of 150 half-chests at 40s., soune Indian teas also being placed at 1s. 6d. and 1s. 9d. per 1b. Mauritius sugars are moving off fairly well, white commanding from £35 to £57. Some Java collee was placed at 4gd. Epps' exces in tanks sold at 1s. 6d. Sales of candles having further concentrated stocks, leading holders now sak 8gd, for D.R.J.'s; colonial manufactured candles selling at from 7gd, to 7gd., according to quantity. In dried fruits, currants continue to move off at 5ds. Blice for expert was sold but other cereals were discoloured also. An active factured candles selling at from 74d. to 73d., according to quantity. In dried fruits, currants continue to move off at 5d. Rice for export was sold in bond at £12 10s. Sales of Hora castor oil noted at 7s. 3d. and 4s., pints and half-pints. Keon's mustard sold at 8s. 9d.; Burnett's vinegar at 1s. 8d.; Loa and Perrin's half-pint sauce at 1ls. 6d. Browers' goods are without change in value, except that hops are scarcely so dear. In liquors, we notice sales of Honnesy's single star at 35s., three-star being still unobtainable from first hands. Genéva, full contents, had attention had 11s. 9d. to 12s. Lowndes rum tirm at late rates. Bottled boar of leading rum firm at late rates. Bottled beer of leading brands still receives considerable attention, large sate of Foster's being reported at full prices. In metals the market discloses no special feature: business in small lot of White Cross fencing wire is quoted at £11 and £14 54, for Nos. 8 and 10 respectively. Of sheet lead an assert d invoice to arrive was placed at £18 5s. Braby's Sun brand galvanised iron, also to arrive, was £23 10s. In drugs, carbonate of soda, £12, with sales £23 10s. In drugs, carbonate of soda. £12, with sales; bluestone placed at £25; sales of tartaric acid and cream of tartar at equal to late rates. On the wharfs yesterday morning there was a very good supply of produce offering for sale. Lucerne hay was sold up to 70s.; Warrnambool potatoes, £1 to £4 10s.; Victorian chaff, £6; Melbourne onions, £1; maize, 2a, 7d. to 3a.; outs seed, 2s. 3d. to 2s. 9d.; feed, 2s. 6d. to 3a.; Cape barley, 4s. 5d.; butter, 1a.; eggs, 1s. 10d.; choose, 7d.; bacon, 8d. to 10d.; ham, 1s. to 1a. 1d.; lead of the charge £4 to 1d.; hence £4 to 1d.; hence £4 to 1d.; lead of the charge £5. choese, 7d.; bacon, 8d. to 10d.; ham, 1s. to 1s. del.

lard, 9d. to 10d.; honey, 4d. to 6d.; beswax, 9d. to
10d. Messrs. Brunker and Wolfe sold, on behalf of the Hunter River Farmers' Association, 200 bales of Rucerse hay at from 5ds, to 70s., 116 bags of oats at 2s. 8d., and pumpkins at 2s. 7d. per dozen. At the Barling Harbour rankway station to-day there was a fair supply of produce forward. Prime hay met with a good sale, but inferior qualities were not in demand.
Osten hay, in bales, realised 5s. 5d.; inferior. 2s. 7d.;
In bundles, 4s. to 5s. 8d.; inferior. 2s. 7d. to

Messrs, Harrison, Jones, and Davlin, limited, at their wool sale to-day, catalogued 655 bales. For the few good lots brought forward there was active competition
at good rates; but low and fauity lots were unsalable, arrent at a considerable reduction on last week's prices.

good lots brought forward there was active competition at good rates; but low and fauity lots were unsalable, except at a considerable reduction on last week's prices. The cables to hand during the last few days have had a depressing effect on the market. The bulk of the wools now available comprises faulty and low conditioned lots, and buyers are evidently not prepared to do business in these except at prices much lower than those lately ruling. Among the principal lines sold were:—Gressy: TD over M, 15 at 0½d.; Wever G, 20 at 0½d.; SP, 25 at 10½d. Scoured Bellies and Pieces: Weebolobolo, 30 from 18½d. to 15¼d. The Sponcy Morning Berald.

TUESDAY, MARCH 20, 1883.

The renewal of the mail contract on the Pacific route is to be discussed this week in Parliament on the motion of a private member. It is to be presumed that Sir likney Parkers will be in a position to explain the nature and the results of his negotiations while he was in America, and that the Government will be prepared with a definite statement of the policy they are disposed to recommend.

is no doubt that the tendency of things, so far as liritish policy is concerned, is in the direction of the abolition of postal subsidies to ocean-going steamers, the being that so many commerreason cial lines are now started that a postal service is almost guaranteed without any extraneous support. But though tendency exists, it is not uniform everywhere and there are counteracting forces. cannot, for instance, say that substi-dies are dying out, when we have before us the evidence of a French line to Australia more munificently subsidised than any English line has ever been. As between England and North America postal subsidies ceased, and that is precisely the line where they might be expected first to disappear, because it is a line of such enormous com-merce. The commerce between the two countries is so great that every day a steamer leaves England for America, or vice versa. Subsidies will naturally linger on routes of smaller traffic, and between the more distant termini. The question for us to consider granting that the time may come when no more subsidies will be wanted, has that time come now? This is a question which, properly speaking, ought to be considered by the Australian colonies as a whole. But this it has never been possible to do since Victoria first broke up the Australian postal concert. It was due to that break-up that we were forced into the Pacific service, and though circumstances have changed since then, they have not so changed as to make independent action any longer superfluous.

statistics have been lately placed before Parliament showing the cost to the on the American line has to be charged so as stone and Mr. Chamberlair were both sup-to bring out the cost per letter by that route; porters of that self-government which the while on the other lines, the cost is merely National League is trying to get. If this were an arrangement. We have hitherto had the free use of the Victorian mail service, because we have given our neighbours equally the free use of ours. The Suez line has free use of ours. The Sucz line has been open to us without any formal contribution to it. All that we have done has been to collect and give to Victoria the post-ages on everything going by its line. This ages on everything going by its line. small correspondence going by the Queens land line. If, however, we were to drop our own line, we should probably find that we could no longer use the other two lines for nothing. Victoria has for some time past been asking us for a contribution towards its service, and if we had no service of our own the demand would be irre-istible. If the mail contracts were all running out now, the whole question could be considered dr novo, and without the en-tanglement of existing obligations. But that is not the case, and the problem therefore is what is best for us to do pending the currency of the contracts belonging to the other colonies. It would not be worth our while to have our mail service uncertain and irregular, or to place ourselves in any way at the mercy of other contracting parties. No one would advocate a renewal of the large sum we now pay towards the Pacific line But, if that contract could be continued for term of two or three years, and at a charge to us, say, not exceeding £20,000 a year, which would be diminished by the postage enarge would be diminished by the postage receipte, and by our share of any contribution coming from America, it would be politic in us to keep up the service. It is understood to be the wish of the New Zealand Government that we should do so, and it is desirable that we should maintain our postal alliance with that colony. It must also be remembered that the Pacific route completes the circle of postal communication all round the globe, and that in case of any disturbances in Egypt, or any great maritime war, it gives us the advantage of a duplicate route and a duplicate flag.

A good deal of attention is naturally drawn to the importance of our paving the way for an entrance into the postal union; but that would not be prevented by our renewing the existing service at a cheaper rate. If we joined the postal union our letter rate to Europe would still probably be sixpence, because, while fivepence is the uniform rate for ocean letters, power is reserved to charge an extra penny to distant places; and as Australia is one of the countries most distant from Europe, the charge would probably be levied. But we send now to Europe by the American route fo sixpence, and we also have by that route a uniform postage of eightpence to all Europea countries, as against ninepence by the Suez route. Our Continental correspondence is not very large, and the postal charge to England is what we have principally to consider. At present the charge is sixpence by all routes from England, and sixpence by our subsidised route to England. By joining the postul union we should probably get a sixpenny rate by all routes, but then we now. Exactly how we should stand it is difficult at present to state, but we should certainly have to pay for the uniformity. The union is not going to do our work for nothing. It is quite possible that, by an arrangement with the Messageries Maritimes, we might bring down the charge for Continental correspondence sent by their line to sixpence, because France, being in the union, could give the benefit of it to all mails carried by its own subsidised line, and the company would be willing to make a small profit out of any mails it carried for us. The Continental correspondence, however, is not of very much importance, and what we have unincipally to consider in the award and we would be willing to make a small profit out of any mails it carried for us. The Continental correspondence, however, is not of very much importance, and what we have principally to consider is the speed and regularity and economy of our postal service with England. We cannot afford to allow it to become disarranged, and if we want speed and regularity wo must not expect that other and regularity we must not expect that other services are thus enabled to pay the year's rent necessary that they might take and regularity we people will furnish it to us, simply out of neighbourly friendship. It is satisfactory to find that Mr. REDMOND'S speeches on St. Patrick's Day were more temperate than some of those he has previously delivered. Whether we owe this to his own good sense, or to that of his advisory friends, we do not know, but we can equally rejoice in the result. His attempt, owever, to run down Sir HENRY PARKES only tended to make him a little ridiculous. He cannot teach us anything fresh of a man whom we have known since Mr. REDMOND whom we have known since Mr. Rednond was in the cradic. The good qualities and the bad qualities of the ex-Premier have been discussed by friends and foes till there is nothing left to say, and his private life has been almost made a public affair by the use that has been made of it. Mr. Rednond may possibly be of some political service to Sir Henry Parkes, as indeed he has already been, but it is quite beyond his power to do anything to damage him. He might as well throw soft peas against a rock. Sir Henry Parkes can be his own enemy, as he has too often been, but he has nothing whatever to fear from the young gentleman who is now on a visit to those colonies. We understand our own politicians, and our own politicians, a great politics, and our own politicians, a great deal better than Mr. REDMOND does. Ile would have shown more discretion if he had abstained from an attempt to damage the political reputation of a man who is alto before Parliament showing the cost the country of each separate route by which our the political reputation of a man who is altocountry of each separate route by which our gether out of his reach. the incidental expense of putting our letters true there would be no necessity for him on board the mail steamers. It is, of course, a very natural remark for bully Mr. GLADSTONE, and keep Ireland in a people who merely look at these figures to state of agitation. So far as Parliamentary people who merely look at these figures to state of agitation. So far as Parliamentary say that, as it is very much cheaper to representation is concerned, Ireland not only use lines that other people subsidise, our better plan would be to drop out of the business altogether, and let our neighbours pay the piper. But that pre-supposes that our neighbours would be quite contented with such and the provement. The sole reason why it has not been conferred bithout her has been any formed. not been conferred hitherto has be that it would be turned to a bad use. All that Mr. H. GLADSTONE and Mr. CHAMBERLAIN sny amounts to this-that it would be better to run the risks of that abuse. The municipal Government of England itself is very faulty, and of London the most faulty of all, and one thing that the Government is trying to has been no tax on our revenue, because the do is to reorganise the municipal system money has been paid by the letter-writers, throughout England, except so far as has received. The only expense we have been at has been the charge incidental to getting our letters to and from Melbourne.

The same remark applies to the comparation. there could not Kingdom advance in that system of municipal administration which in the past has done so much for British liberty, and in training the people in the habit of self-government, and from which so much may be hoped in the future. Mr. REDMOND knows very well that though he puts Mr. GLADSTONE and Mr. ('HAMBERLAIN in the front as for his policy, he means something very different from this. He would not be content to have Ireland on the same footing that the rest of the United Kingdom is. H wants Ireland to have something that England does not have, that Scotland does not have, that Wales does not have. He want to make a fundamental alteration the Constitution of the United Kingdom, that is to say he wants five million people to force a change that the remaining twenty millions do not want. Mr. REDMOND bases faccable and ineradicable distinction between Irishmen and Englishmen that prevents Irishmen from falling into the sa with Scotchmen, Welshmen, and Cornishmen. The fact is historically untrue, for Ireland to considerable extent contains a mixture of races. Ulster is not hopelessly alienated by race from the Lowlands land, nor Leinster from the Welsh. But the argument is particularly in-appropriate to address to an Australian auence. Out here, so far from being ineffaceably distinguished from each other, the Teutons and the Celts are inextricably intermingled. There is not a street in the city, there is not a township in the country, there is not a large industrial establishment, there is not a bank or insurance company, there is not a cor-poration, there is not a social club, nay, there is hardly a large household in which the Saxon and the Celt are not mixed up together. In all these cases, difference of race does not prevent co-operation, does not prevent subordination to the same laws, or acquiescence in race itself has its historical limits if we are to trust the ethnologists, who class both as coming from the Aryan stock, and intor races together. These two races have been mixed in Germany, in France, in Italy, in Spain, in England, in Ireland, in America, and in Australia. Therefore when Mr. REDMOND rests the basis of his whole argument on the fact of racial distinction and separate nationality, he uses an argument which is against a prolonged and a present experience. Under such and a present experience. circumstances, it is not surprising that he should be inconsistent with himself. In one should not get the recoup we have should not say a word or do now. Exactly how we should stand it a thing to alienate the English and it discult at present to state, but we the Irish who are here satisfactorily living under the same Government. In the next he asks for money to keep up the alienation between the two sides of St. George's Channel. But if Irishmen and Englishmen can be so happily co-governed here, why are we to subscribe money co-government on the other side of > year's rent necessary that they might take advantage of the Arreara Act and retria possession of their homes. But after dong this, Lady Plonence had the courage to suggest, in a letter to the Morning Post, that it was the duty of the Land League to relieve the families which had been ruined by obeying its behests, and that, as there was a balance of £32,000 from Land League funds subscribed originally for the relief of distross, it was absurd to expect further contributions for that purpose whilst the balance was "jealously guarded" for some other. Is this murderous assault an answer to the letter, a vindication of the League, a practical illustration of the object for which the balance, jealously guarded, is being reserved! Time will allow. Meanwhile the presumption goes that way. The lady's claims upon the goodwill, not to say the gratitude, of Irishmen; her courage in daring to Irish funds are forced to ask themselves what security they have against becoming aiders and abottors in the commission and concealment of the blackest crime. People who are indifferent as to that risk may either ask for money or give it after shutting their eyes or submitting to be blindfolded. But others who shrink from the idea of complicity with murder will not pay money with their eyes open into gloved hands. Lady FLORENCE DIXES has warned the public as to the possible destination of benevolent subscriptions. Her life has been attempted. Her warning is rendered thereby

After referring to the fact that on this occasion he enjoyed the unacoustomed luxury of a walk-over, he remarked that he was essentially a fighting man, and to some extent, found his occupation gone, at least for a time. He then pave a sketch of public events from the Liberal victory in 1877 to the present time, and showed that political matters were gradually tending towards the coalition of the party leaders which had taken place. The coalition was the moral outcome of a series of circumstances, and he cherished the belief that it would prove to be a national Government in the strictest and best some. He referred. As nothing more tends to break the memotony of life in an asylum than outdoor re-restion, the clerks of the Central Police Office, about three menths ago, challenged the Asylum officials to a social game of cricket. The match, was played on the excellent cricket ground of the asylum, and resulted in an casy victory for the Asylum officials who from their frequent practice of the noble game invariably score a win from any team that has the temerity to compete with them. In last Saturday's contest they rockoned without their host, and were robbed of a victory which had on both sides been predicted in their tayour. As the weather was all that could be desired and the wickets in perfect condition, there was a close struggle for victory. The Asylum officials won the toss and went first to the wickets. They offered a most determined resistance to the vigorous round-arm trundling of Messrs. Fegam, Connell, and Beaver, which was so effective as to only permit them to score 69. The Centrals then went to the wickets, and almost from the start their chance of success looked certain, despite the straight shooters of such a galaxy of bowlers as Messrs. The chairman, in clear and comprehensive terms, gave an account of the work done on the line, and as a professional man saw no difficulty in calling for tenders making Wollongong the starting point, and on one side to construct a line to Clifton, also one to Macquaris River on the south. No engineering difficulty existed on this portion. The tunnel at Clifton would be a very heavy undertaking, and the construction of the proposed section would facilitate the complotion of the whole line, which, it had been conclusively proved, would pay from the commencement. The following resolutions were unanimously passed:—"That the delay in calling for tenders for the construction of the railway into Illawarra, in accordance with the vote of Parliament passed two years ago, is a most serious drawback to the South Const districts, retarding, as it does, its general progress." "That, considering the great advantage a speedy completion of the railway would be to Illawarra, it is desirable to urge Government as forelby as possible to call for tenders for the construction of the line from Stanwell Point to Wollongong and Macquarie River, pending the completion of the protracted survey between the end of the present railway contract and Stanwell Park." "That the substance of foregoing resolutions be embodied in a memorial deputation, including the member for the district, Sir John Hay, and Sir Wigram Allen, was appointed to present the memorial, and urge its prayer.
